Wood Characteristics

Wood: Wood species in all finishes will exhibit color changes when exposed to different types of light and environments over time. Such color changes are expected in Hampton Bay® brand cabinetry and are not defects. Graining differences, mineral streaks and color variations are expected in wood cabinetry. Hampton Bay cabinet door styles often exhibit these characteristics and such graining differences, mineral streaks and color variations are not defects.

Maple: Maple wood inherently has a characteristic known as “birdseye” or “fiddleback” pattern in the wood. When finished, it can have the appearance of a varied sheen, a splotchy appearance, or satiny look. This is the beauty of real maple and not a defect. In most cases it takes on a very pleasant look. Mineral streaks are also common and may appear darker when stained.

Oak: Oak is an open-grained hardwood with varying patterns ranging from straight grain to wide arcs. When stained, there will be a noticeable difference in the color shades between the open and closed grain areas of the wood. Wood can range from pink to a reddish brown.

Hickory: Hickory is a heavy hardwood which when finished has a warm, appealing appearance. Distinctive color streaks, combined with knots and other noticeable characteristics, make for a rustic appearance. While some parts may be clear and others extremely rustic, the characteristics of hickory are an inherent part of its charm and are considered to be a desirable part of the total look.

Wood Characteristics, Aging and Printing Limitations: Because of the varying natural characteristics of wood and the effects of aging, product shown in displays and/or printed materials will not be an exact match to new cabinetry you will receive. Depending on the wood characteristics, the age of a sample and the environment of the showroom, samples will show some degree of variation from new product. In addition, you should not expect all doors, drawer fronts, trim or molding to match exactly in either finish or grain. Variation in wood is normal and unavoidable. In addition, it is not possible to exactly match our colors in printed materials. Therefore, you should view the actual samples when making your color selection.

IMPORTANT HEALTH NOTICE:

Some of the building materials used in this home (or these building materials) emit formaldehyde. Eye, nose, and throat irritation, headache, nausea and a variety of asthma-like symptoms, including shortness of breath, have been reported as a result of formaldehyde exposure. Elderly persons and young children, as well as anyone with a history of asthma, allergies, or lung problems, may be at greater risk. Research is continuing on the possible long-term effects of exposure to formaldehyde.

Reduced ventilation may allow formaldehyde and other contaminants to accumulate in the indoor air. High indoor temperatures and humidity raise formaldehyde levels. When a home is to be located in areas subject to extreme summer temperatures, an air-conditioning system can be used to control indoor temperature levels. Other means of controlled mechanical ventilation can be used to reduce levels of formaldehyde and other indoor air contaminants.

If you have any questions regarding the health effects of formaldehyde, consult your doctor or local health department.

WARNING: This product can expose you to chemicals including Wood Dust which are known to the state of California to cause cancer. For more information go to www.P65Warnings.ca.gov/products.
